Course Objectives

The course integrates the skills of reading, writing, vocabulary building and grammar usage and also includes discrete lessons on these topics. The reading and writing lessons incorporate vocabulary building along with description, narration, exposition and argument. Each lesson contains reading passages followed by several exercises to comprehend the passage while utilizing all the above mentioned techniques. The initial passages are based on factual texts on computers and their characteristics, with the focus on organization of information and description. The imaginative texts show how writers exploit descriptions to convey different meanings. Thus the course aims to improve students' skills required for learning English as a second language.
